King Charles's House, Worcester. A half-timbered structure, built in 1577; its massive oak framing, curious staircase and panelled wainscoting, still in admirable preservation. Here Charles II spent the night before the Battle of Worcester (3rd September, 1651), and here he took refuge after his disastrous defeat, leaving hurriedly by the back door as his pursuers entered the house. In the room where the King slept is a massive bedstead with motto, "God is my watch."
